Read on to learn why employees enjoy working at Bates White.

If you're interested in exploring economic policy, law, and working with data, the Summer Consultant Program at Bates White blends all three as you work on client cases with full-time employees and other interns.

I really appreciated how much effort the firm put into supporting us and exposing us to the possibilities we could explore in this industry: the extensive mentorship programs, weekend trips around DC, and a speaker series where Summers could listen from and ask questions to firm leadership. They helped me figure out what I wanted to pursue and made me feel welcomed. I'm so grateful to have had this experience and to work with a firm that truly invests in the growth of their employees.

STELLA G., CONSULTANT (SCP CLASS OF 2023)

The Summer Consultant Program at Bates White is an experience that fosters holistic development for all those involved. With a culture built on collaboration, knowledge sharing, and feedback, I have always felt supported by consultants, economists, and partners in pursuit of solving incredibly difficult problems.

Working on some of the most critical economic questions in our world today, the analysis I conduct across various methodologies and coding languages has tangible impact in the decisions and arguments made by clients and experts. Outside of billable matters, I am actively engaged in many firm-supported culture groups that contribute to my own personal development, as well as the strong camaraderie and collegiality.
